

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : #$$@%! KNOTS!

Re: #$$@%! KNOTS!

Author: : pete41

Date: : 2011/4/29 15:39:11

URL:

Quote:

Also, was the broken tippet curly or just snapped. If snapped, you might have set the hook too hard. If curly, your knot wasn't tightened and slipped out.

Mkern

I came back to say exactly the same thing.lol

Always wet the mono before cinching down.

If you cinch[pull tight ] dry you have weakened your knot about 50 % more-this can give you clean strike breaks that wouldn't happen normally and do resist the temptation to save money- a three foot tippet is a valuable shock absorber-especially with streamers or wets.