As far as adding weight, depends on the depth and speed of the water you are fishing. I try to use as little weight as possible. And as far as stripping, it depends on the speed of the water Im fishing, the way the water is around here now, it takes every thing I can do just to keep the slack out of my line. I like to fish wooly buggers across the current and start stripping line in the area I think the fish would be holding to give it action, and back upsteam after it drifts down.
