I did a great deal of that type of night fishing on the West Gallatin,near Bozeman Montana.
Medium size stream ,fairly shallow,similar to a lot of Eastern streams.
Floating line,cast across stream,and strip the line in about the speed a mouse would swim.simple.
Grease the fly and have several to keep it floating high.
I used a Dan Baileys fly that they no longer offer[really only a great night fly].
It was a hybrid like many western ones.I tried but can't find a picture of it.
Like a big tent wing caddis,similar to the stimulator but no tail.
Fished it on the full moon cycle[don't buy the dark bs.]
Many 50 to 70 fish nights.
As I mentioned many times before-beaver tail slaps will wake you up -abruptly lol.
This is low,clear hot summer night fishing.Wouldn't jump the gun.
Go get them killer.
