

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Straight leader

Re: Straight leader

Author: : Heritage-Angler

Date: : 2011/6/15 19:47:59

URL:

Quote:

skcuf wrote:

Whenever I get to the water and roll my line off the reel it has some memory. I usually try to combat this memory by pulling between my arms to stretch it a bit. Is there a better way to straighten the leader out? If there was a way that I could increase efficiency while decrease time or leader burn I would love to hear about it.

Take your leader off your line, coil it up like when you took it out of the package, and boil it in boiling water for 5 minutes. Take it out of the water, uncoil it, and give it a good stretch.

This has to be re-done every couple of weeks, but it makes the leader soft and supple for a good bit. Doesn't harm the leader at all. Try it - you'll be amazed...