

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Unexpected meeting leads to big fish on dries...

Re: Unexpected meeting leads to big fish on dries...

Author: : TimRobinsin

Date: : 2011/6/25 0:11:40

URL:

well played sir.

I have been using 3x on my nymph rig lately and then some times tying a short (6") 4x tippet before the flies, using the bloodknot as a holder for my shot (if needed, lately it has not been). sometimes I also tie a dropper on 24" up with a 4" drop and a wet fly of some type.

have you been getting deep quick to get into those lunkers or just letting the flies do their thing on their own? also, how do you determine depth (obviously it varies per hole but i mean relative to depth and conditions), everyone has their own formula, and if you dont mind sharing yours I would find it insightful.

I realize this may seem prying and perhaps complicated , but any insight is appreciated. I just enjoy comparing notes, haha.

again, well played sir, those are beaut's!