Love your reports, they are the main reason I read this website. I was curious if you know what's up with the scheduled releases on the Yough. Last year it never got below 620 CFS, and that was in September. Right now, on the USGS website, the forecasted flows this weekend are only 430 CFS in Ohiopyle, which is surely too low to float the middle. Do you have any idea what's going on?
