

---

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : while you were sleeping

while you were sleeping

Author: : turkey

Date: : 2011/7/8 8:44:02

URL:

Staying up all night has its advantages. I've been waiting for some kind of magic with all of the Hex spinners hanging around the river. So far I haven't seen any concentrated spinner fall. I fished the Allegheny from about midnight 'til 1am and then 5am 'til about 6am. At 5am the water got really active. The bass were taking big rubber-legged poppers. I eventually switched to a coffin fly poly wing spinner because it was the closest thing to a Hex that I had. I'm not really sure of the identity of the last fish pictured. I originally thought it was an Alewife but after some looking around, I think it might be what's called a Mooneye. I'm not sure though. Any thoughts on the ID would be greatly appreciated. Thanks.

Attach file:

 nightbass1 (640x361).jpg (187.95 KB)

 nightbass2 (640x478).jpg (231.93 KB)

 mooneye (640x361).jpg (197.50 KB)

