

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : New Sage Rod

Re: New Sage Rod

Author: : Heritage-Angler

Date: : 2011/7/10 14:54:56

URL:

Quote:

Fredrick wrote:

I would say it is a lighter Z-axis it was windy when I casted it so I didn't get a true feel for the rod plus the guy at tco kept pushing the new winston rod on me to the point that he almost made me cast it . They must get kick backs from winston with how bad this guy was pushing this winston. I do like the new grip though it gives you more power during casting

That's odd. The guys at TCO never pushed anything on me - I hate when salesmen do that. I've always seen the TCO guys as just helpful, never pushy.

Shoulda cast that Bliix. One can never have too many green sticks. 🤔

Almost got one myself, but I couldn't turn down the smokin' good deals on the Z-Axis right now. I tried like hell to get another 590-4 XP, but they're gone. Still my favorite, but the Z is a better dry fly rod.

I'm gonna name my new Z-Axis "Sophie". 😁