I totally agree with the Diamondglass observation. I still want one. I don't know what XPs went for originally, but they are still in high demand as well...they seem to fetch between $350-$450 depending on condition.

I could see the A3s holding their "auction value" down the road. Sometimes the best bet is to get one at a clearance price from a shop before they're all gone and prices become dictated by the bidding public. If only I could see the future...

Also, is it wrong of me to hate woven graphite reel seats? I don't know why I do...I just can't get past it.
