Also, is it wrong of me to hate woven graphite reel seats? I don't know why I do...I just can't get past it.

No, and yes. Wood seats absorb salt water and split. Thus, if you plan to hit something tidal, its metal or graphite. The latter still looks nicer than the former, but wood is prettier still.

I, on the other hand, have an unreasonable hatred of sliding band reel seats. The last three rods I bought have had these monstrosities. I need hit kbob up, speaking there of...

Wood is among the heavier seat inserts as well.
