Having attended a big jam, outside of the central factor, it seems to be less fishing and more socializing. Ed's educational venture, on the other hand, was downright perfect, and liRC, someone on the west side ran the same sort of event.

Furthermore, Ed's been instrumental in setting up multiple smaller events for trico fishing, and these are also ideal for people to show up, especially because they're nominally held in the Lehigh Parkway and thus easy for non-fishing parents to find something to do, or observe their kids with those weird Internet people.

There's been talk and the occasional other such gathering, not to mention many of us are members of local Trout Unlimited, which often have fish-ins as well, another resource to be utilized.
