

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : Good, or bad reintroduction?

Re: Good, or bad reintroduction?

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2011/7/21 18:19:37

URL:

Restoring elvers (baby eels) in the upper Susky watershed is a good idea. Whether these fish will find their way out to sea - they'd have to get over the dams either by fish ladder or some improvisation I'd think - remains to be seen.

The dams blocking the lower Susky are not going to be removed any time soon. The Dock St dam could be, but the others that span the length and block fish passage - Holtwood, Safe Harbor, Conowingo, etc - are massive hydroelectric projects and aren't going anywhere.