

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : Tying Cockpit

Re: Tying Cockpit

Author: : Maurice

Date: : 2008/1/9 16:41:23

URL:

SD,

I have experience tying in the car.....

I use a "breakfast in bed" type tray when I tie in the car. Sometimes I am required to sit in the car and observe traffic movements at intersections. Sometimes these intersections are on back roads and for three hours at a time I may only see a couple dozen cars.

Anyway, rather than read magazines, books or balance my checkbook, I tie flies. I put my pedistal vice, hook box and tool caddy all on the tray. (along with Jamar). I keep my materials organized in a sturdy shoebox between the front seats.

This is actually the most comfortable tying station I have EVER sat at.

I will admit that I keep my tying in the car to easy ties. (weenies, sucker spawn, wooly buggers, nymphs, comparaduns, etc.) I tie a dozen at a time of each pattern and put them in my Plano re-stock box. I can do anywhere from 8-12 /hr and still fulfill my duty to the job.

Oh and I do this in the passenger seat. I would imagine doing it in the drivers seat would be uncomfortable and cramped.