I'm not referring to the fish, I'm talking about the river itself. Its very silted up. There was very little aquatic plant growth this summer. The hatches do not seem as prolific as in years past. I just think the development in the area and that hatchery are hurting the fishery, although the hatchery is probably why there remains a decent large trout population due to all the midges that enter the river through the outflows. Don't get me wrong, I still catch a ton of fish there. I haven't caught less than a half dozen fish there in longer than I can remember. It just doesn't look like how I remember it, nor like the older pictures of the fabled stream once looked. I think there are some stream improvements that could be done to help, but the silt problem, I don't know how to fix that.
