Well I hope you planning to do any ice fishing anytime soon, you would never know it by the weather but it is Dec. 29th,2006. Wow the year is almost done. But the rain we had a couple days ago may help the year go out with a bang for the steelhead, as it helped move more fish into the creeks. The creeks were in good shape yesterday and they should be in very good shape today. The reports I'm hearing the fish aren't real big but they are catching a bunch of them. The baits that seem to be working are minnows, single eggs. And from what I am hearing the burbot are really hitting in the bay area. Hopefully you can keep the bait flying and the fish jumpin until next year.
