My first was Marinaro's "A Modern Dry Fly Code," in the mid-eighties. Though I enjoyed it immensely, indeed I studied it earnestly, it lead me into a dry fly cul-de-sac for many years.

But the story has a happy ending because I later read Ray Bergman and found my way again.

I just bought a old copy of Ray Bergman's "Trout". Looks like a good book. It has LOTS of old wet fly patterns. I love reading those old books.
