Well when I was 25 and sorta rated a stream based on the number of fish I caught in it, I would have said Kettle Creek and Big Pine. Now that I am retired and base my like or dislike of a stream more on my having had an overall good day I would say Spring Creek. I am not too fond of fishing in someones yard with cars trucks tractors and joggers being a constant annoyance. Nothing more plesant for me than to be on a stream on a nice fall morning with maybe a hatch or rising trout taking terrestrials, surrounded by trees and wildlife and maybe, possibly catching a few fish. Numbers of fish have no relevance on my experience, some of the best days I've had were fishless. I have always caught more fish in Spring than I have at either Fishing or Penns but prefer these two over Spring because of the setting. 😊 😊 😊
