

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Rod building

Re: Rod building

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2007/1/3 17:51:54

URL:

By all means give it a try. If you really like it you can get motors and other stuff later. A fly tying bobbin works fine for wrapping thread. I build all my rods (working on a 10WT today) and don't worry about detail or perfection as I fish 'em hard. If you decide that rod building isn't worth it you won't have a great loss. I agree that Cabelas has good components at very reasonable prices. The Stowaway blank is a real bargain - it's a five piece blank that retails for about $35. I have built many rods on this blank and it performs well.