

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Tight Sticking Erie Steelhead

Re: Tight Sticking Erie Steelhead

Author: : jdaddy

Date: : 2011/10/11 17:24:54

URL:

Quote:

afishinado wrote:

After living together for so long, Tilt finally got in Jay's head.....and he's got himself a pin outfit. He's now moving to Montana (where nobody knows him). I fear, if he gets caught fishing that thing out there, the local buckaroos may hang him from the nearest ponderosa pine up in the high country.

Well ya, he's used Raven and Thill floats. But those are floats. See? LOL.

Actually those floats could teach a lot of fly fishermen a thing or two about indicators, namely they are most beneficial to show the progress of your drift. Seeing a float go under is secondary.

Can you imagine the success a pinner would have in MT? Jebus.