

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Good Small Stream Rod

Re: Good Small Stream Rod

Author: : zenherper

Date: : 2011/10/24 18:36:09

URL:

I purchased a 7'6" St. Croix Avid 2 wt. for my "small stream" fishing, but to be honest, I have a tough time getting the rod to load properly and thus getting it to cast well. I have since started using a Sage VPS 7'6" 4 wt., which I absolutely LOVE. It casts like a dream, and I can get into tight quarters with it. That said, I wouldn't mind going lighter if I can get the right feel and casting with a lighter rod. I am currently exploring some options with lighter rods (just purchased a 7' 3 wt to try).

Not to hi-jack the thread, but would any of you more experience rod gurus recommend throwing a 3 wt line on the 2 wt?