

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Good Small Stream Rod

Re: Good Small Stream Rod

Author: : tomitrout

Date: : 2011/10/26 9:55:49

URL:

pccray: Quote:

First thing most do is strip out 60 feet of line and start hero casting. Well, guess what, there's one rod in the mix that's actually a 7 wt with a 5 wt sticker on it. And it feels FANTASTIC, much better than the other rods. Sold, and you go home with a 7 wt rod and saying, "boy, modern rods cast so much better than older rods". Till you get streamside and have to make a 10 ft cast with an underlined rod, anyway....

ok, so I gotta ask...if you personally know this, then why do you buy rods only to overline them when you fish? Looks to me like you're doing exactly what you describe here, why don't you just get a 3/4wt that actually does load in close without having to overline it?