

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Where do the brandywine smallies go?

Re: Where do the brandywine smallies go?

Author: : wbranch

Date: : 2011/11/15 22:03:30

URL:

Fishidiot brings up some interesting points. During the summer I sometimes fish the Susquhanna from Bainbridge to the Marietta launch and down to the Columbia launch as well as some wet wading and it is hard to find any SMB over 12". Then as the water starts to cool down from the hot summer water temperatures I start to pickup some really large SMB in the 18" - 20" class all near shore or in any section where soft water seams with swift water. However as soon as the water gets a couple of nights of a solid frost all those bigger bass just seem to disappear overnight.

They were both released and swam away with vim and vigor.

Attach file:

 Bass Double.jpg (38.95 KB)

