Here I was going to tell you about riparian park and how its heavily stocked in the early season multiple times. Once for first day and a few times for various events. I was going to tell you that it does get hit hard even into the late summer but is always worth trying at some point after the summer. I was also going to tell you its one of the sections that banta property fish sometimes wonder in, hatchery escapes also sometimes wonder in and some wild bows show up there. I was also going to tell you that the tan caddis hatch is heaviest in that section and in the early season, even after being pounded, you can catch rising fish right after someone fished over them. But I'm no help. On that note, you could get a cattle prod ;)
