Skunked on Muskies Again (Despite Good Conditions)

I enjoy fishing rivers for muskies during the colder months and got out today for four or five hours. Fished from shore today focusing on my favorite feeder creeks and bank side eddies with wood. As is so often the case with muskies, I caught the skunk. Did have one very small fish follow my fly but he wouldn't eat. Also - banks very muddy and slick, I should have worn cleats.

Anyway, conditions are ideal here in center state and, I'd imagine, across much of the state. The rivers have a good flow but are clear and the next few days are forecast to see a warming trend. Perfect. I can't get out again this weekend but if you're looking to do some winter prospecting for muskies.....now is the time.
