But if you avoid these difficult fish & situations, how will you develop the skills it takes to catch them? Seems like your preference/approach of seeking out easier fish for the sake of tallying numbers can be self limiting in some ways.

Personally, I'd rather catch that one possibly legendary & difficult fish than have just another day of 'caught 6, most were 10"ers with a nice one pushing 13" mixed in...'

Guess it depends on your definition of 'success.'

And nice write up Sal, that's a fun stretch of water.
