Another great post. I've learned to love the Griffiths Gnat. I probably catch more fish on top on that fly than any other (maybe a EHC). Everything you spoke of really gets into the details as to why midges work well. I've never really done much midging but know I need to. Once all these house projects get done the tying bench is going to see a few miles put on it.

Thanks again for the time you've put into enlightening us!
