Albie,

I don't wear corrective lenses but won't fish without Polarized glasses. I have a couple kids and a wife that are blind as bats though without their glasses. So I know what glasses cost. And after a trip to Erie with Jack M and his buddy, the manager at the optical dept of a major chain my understanding is the cost increases approximately $80-120 dollars depending on the tinting style of the lens with polarization. So if your prescription glasses cost say $150, after polarization and tinting they could be $250 or more.

Of course I was pretty tired when they were boring me with the details...so Jack may be able to add some fact to my mumbo jumbo.
