

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Eastern Green Drake

Re: Eastern Green Drake

Author: : ryguyfi

Date: : 2012/1/13 11:01:03

URL:

Quote:

pcray1231 wrote:

Great pics!

I did not know about the 4 different size/color variations. Interesting. I've encountered Drakes on about a dozen PA streams.

In western PA (Allegheny drainage mostly), Hex's are much more common and produce similarly huge hatches and spinner falls, but a lot of people incorrectly call them Green Drakes too. Drakes have 3 tails, Hex's have 2.

The Hex's off the Allegheny and other Western PA rivers are HUGE. They're a solid 2-3 hook sizes bigger than the Penns Green Drakes. I'll try to do some recon and take some pictures this year of them if I can catch them.