Yeah, I wasn't looking (or expecting) a consensus opinion by any stretch, but I agree that's pretty close, especially for the crowd that hangs out here! Thanks for the responses guys.

As I mentioned, I throw a size 16-18 Red Quill to imitate it, and do fine with that, but I imagine a host of other flies would do just as well. Follow up question - what would you guys use to imitate it (dun phase) and why? Just think this kind of conversation is fun, especially in mid-January.
