

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Hatch and Entomology Forum Q&A

Re: Hatch and Entomology Forum Q&A

Author: : dkile

Date: : 2012/1/15 18:40:00

URL:

Glad we are talking about our thoughts on this forum. I hope the mods will jump in here too for some of collective thoughts from them.

I hope the the posts here can stay more on topic with the original post. If someone posts a photo of a sulphur and the thread ends up talking about how to cook lamb we have derailed the topic! If the topic starts with Hendericksons and gets to a story about how nice of a day you had with Trico's somewhere, the thread is derailed. Wait till we get to Trico's and then tell your story.

The hope here is for the posts to be a solid reference for entomology in the region and discussions focused on that topic. Details, facts, times, locations and a photo are going to helpful. One good photo is all we need, five out of focus pictures of bugs in the air is really only taking up space.

Good questions and dialog are encouraged.

I am trying to better manage the space on the site and I am going to ask we post pictures that are close to 450 x 450 pixels at 72 dpi. These sizes are going to be at about 50 kb and certainly less 150k set for the forum. If it is bigger then I suggest you try cropping and resizing to see if that helps.