

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Eastern Green Drake

Re: Eastern Green Drake

Author: : turkey

Date: : 2012/1/15 19:06:21

URL:

there are some Hex pics in the "photos" section of PAFF. There were some other type of drake that hatched, in much smaller numbers, on the Allegheny well after the Hex's were done last year. They were smaller than the Hex's and mottled brown. I was surprised at the variety of mayflies hatching on the Allegheny. Not huge hatches but sulphurs, every type of cahill, BWO's (the bigger ones, Drunella lata I think), Hex's, a few slate drakes, caenis (thanks jay), at least one trico, etc. Too bad there aren't any trout.

NOM, sand, heritage, jack nice pics.