I've always been able to find good polarizing sunglasses for around $15. I like the yellow, because they don't darken the scene, they brighten the scene.

Deep in the woods they help see into the water and pick out fish.

They also protect your eyes from UV rays, but did you know that by just wearing a baseball cap you reduce uv rays by 30%.

The way polarizers work is they cut the glare by reducing horizontaly polarized light reflected off road surfaces and water by using a vertical filter to block the reflection of light.
