

---

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Small Big Spring Sculpin

Re: Small Big Spring Sculpin

Author: : Maurice

Date: : 2012/1/26 8:16:37

URL:

Quote:

brookiesofpa wrote:

Quote:

midnightangler wrote:

Quote:

What does "imitate" mean to a trout? They are dumber than my cat and he is D-U-M-B, dumb!

You should try throwing a big black sculpin to your cat (as long as you cut the hook point off first)

Be careful as the cat will chew up the sculpin and bite yer flyline in half.....Got the fly line to prove it...

OMG, that happened to me.....my neighbor (a kid in culinary school) came to me knowing I flyfished and offered me his two clearwater rods and orvis reels for sale. He needed money and didn't fish much. I said I really didn't need them but let me check them out. next day when I came home they were on the porch. I put the one I didn't already have together and started casting int he yard....cat came over and I looked down and before you knew it he bit the line in half. Like 20 ft from the leader.

I did the "did anyone see that" head spin and quickly coiled up the end, bit off the leader and retied it on to the "new" end.

Reeled it up and took the whole mess back.

I later bought the whole group when he asked again....