I wasnt told anything, I never had a kinda mentor persay. Two years on brooky creeks in the Quehanna area pretty much humbled me & taught everything thing I know. Now after looking back I have a greater satisfaction buy learned on my own. But the knowledge you can obtain from just observing and talkin to guys in your local fly shop is invaluble. The shop I frequent in Clearfield theres guys that are into steelhead and browns. The switch rod guys and the dry fly purists. And even us musky guys. So its nice when somone comes in with a question theres a shop regular that into it.
