

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Eastern Green Drake

Re: Eastern Green Drake

Author: : pcray1231

Date: : 2012/1/30 11:59:27

URL:

Quote:

Most of the Hex hatch in Western Pa waters is on warm water fisheries. The major river systems seem to be pumping out the big bugs more and more in the last few years. Maybe they'll stretch to some trout streams, but I haven't really seen any yet.

That's just not true. I've hit very fishable hex hatches on wild trout streams in western PA.

They aren't quite as impressive in numbers as they are on the larger, warmer, more fertile waters. But no hatch is. There's plenty enough to get the fish looking up.