

---

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Trout in Lakes?

Re: Trout in Lakes?

Author: : streamerguy

Date: : 2012/2/5 14:10:51

URL:

Well, yesterday my brother and I went back out to the lake and caught a lot more! All stocked brookies this time and there were tons of them(just stocked recently). We were even able to see them cruising around in the shallow water. I was able to get a handfull on the fly using the same tactic I described above except for the split shot and the indicator, the water was much shallower than I thought. My brother also caught a bunch spinfishing and we ended the day with around 20 or so. I never used to do good in lakes for trout, but now 2 trips in a row catching multiple trout, I think I finally broke the learning curve! There were quite a few other guys fishing too in the small area we were in(kinda like opening day but less crowded), not my cup of tea, but they were all friendly people and overall it was a great time on the water!

Attach file:

 P2040026w.JPG (123.28 KB)

