I wouldnt dispute that a 70 inch musky isnt possible, but in PA i think not. That was a interesting read. Thats PDF sums up the "muddy" musky world records. And how fish get imbelished over time. I think that on avg. bigger muskies swim today because of better management and a change in angler mind set. The current fly caught world record in the 36 pound tippet class was caught by Brad Bohem. A 51 .25 inch fish in Wis. Bohem record musky article For a shot @ a true beast like the in the 50 pound class on a fly well, Im gonna need a 12 wt. and work on my 16 inch sucker pattern, move to canada and become a musky tramp !
