I think a good amount of people who are "spot burning" are unaware of the results of their actions. They just don't know the amount of people who come on this board and realize the impact it may have on foot traffic. We are an informative website so that's the whole purpose of this web page, but if you feel a certain stream should be a little more hush hush, then send a PM and explain NICELY why such stream should be kept a bit more of a secret.

There are NO secret streams in PA, but definitely some that should have extra care taken of. Thanks Afish for the thread and hopefully we can all just get along!

Good stuff ryguyfi!

I think the big issue is that ya'll are not all that nice when new folks come along and make a mistake on YOUR forum. Instead of taking the high road and saying, "Hey, have you considered...." A lot of folks call them everything but human. That is poor form at best. Take the high road, educated people the way you would want to be educated, and lead them out of the situation. Yelling and screaming at someone for a mistake really says more about you than the "spot-burner." Be graceous folks, it will serve you well.
