I use 80lb flouro for my bite guard. Rather than buying a bunch of different sizes of flouro to tie a tapered leader I find that since the flies are so heavy when wet a tapered leader is not necessary. I go straight 80lb about 5 feet from line to fly. The size does not scare fish away plus the flouro helps hide it a little. Musky are not leader shy. I have also caught walleye and bass while musky fishing with the same set up so they don't mind it either.
