

---

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Early Season BWO's

Re: Early Season BWO's

Author: : just_jon

Date: : 2012/2/8 16:09:32

URL:

My go to has been a comparadun with trailing shuck, but the griffiths has saved the day on many occasions. Last summer I happened onto a couple of tandem rigs which worked exceptionally behind the comparadun:

- 1-Size 20-22 soft hackle unweighted except for a small glass bead tied behind the hackle.
- 2-Size 20-22 olive emerger tied palomino midge style and fished in the film.
- 3-Size 22-24 olive walt's worm ribbed with fine holographic mylar and tied with enough brass wire tied underneath to get it a few inches under the surface.

I tend to tie tandems on a very short line (< 12"), but then I am rarely looking to cover more than the top 6 inches of the water column.