mcwillja,

I only do on larger fish; like over 14".

I believe I hook them legit, but if they get downstream of me I feel the mouth hooked fly pop out because the second fly hooked somewhere else and the pressure is enough I dislodge the mouthed fly. Again I believe this is what happens. There is definately a different fight from once hooked and then the foul hooked part and it is only when the fish gets downstream.

I will add that it's not all the time I have the flies that close; just dry dropper during a hatch.
