Yep. They are closely related. size, shape, etc. are similar. Color differs.

Green = happens every year in small numbers, July-August time frame.

Black and orange - Periodical cicadas. Each area has a "brood". A given brood comes every 17 years (13 years in southern areas). May-June time frame, and in HUGE swarming numbers. So the traveling angler can go find a brood in most years, but the stationary type have to wait a LONG time between local broods.
