

---

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Micro nymphing

Re: Micro nymphing

Author: : Maurice

Date: : 2012/2/19 11:06:58

URL:

Quote:

marcq wrote:

I've found my self in this situation and have difficulties with catching fish. Here's a good video.

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=zha9U ... ture=youtube\_gdata\_player

You don't want to catch fish like that guy...he fouled that fish in the pectoral fin.

Clues:

1. He spooked it several times by lining it fishing the weigh above the fly allowing the fly to dangle below. (notice after the one cast he readjusts the weight)
2. Note when the fish spook they shoot away rather than just drift away from the fly. [indicates they have been lined]
3. When hooked (finally) it again shoots away to the left for cover. He also had a very slow reaction time to the [strike]. Probably because he thought it was another spook form lining.
4. Notice when the fish is fighting underwater the mouth never opens. Trout fight with their mouth open shaking their heads to throw the fly...unless they are fouled then they try to "get away" from the fly. This fish clearly isn't hooked in the mouth.
5. Notice he doesn't show removal of the fly....because that would void the video. Would have been nice to see the fly and to hear him say how it was neatly hooked in the corner of the mouth but apparently it wasn't or the camera battery died.....

No thats a video of gaffing fish with an indicator.weight and a trailing hook. But the hook is small so.....thats a disadvantage.

Hey it only took him four tries (on video).