Back in the '80's I think, the angler ran a "county features" series of articles. It featured a few counties in each issue, and talked about the best fishing opportunities in each one. And must have ran for several years I believe.

These pieces were written by local WCCs and writers who were quite familiar with the waters in that area. rrrt explained to me that he was asked to do the piece for blair county, and agreed to do so rather reluctantly. And it was the only time he did such a thing.

So I apologize to him for my possibly misleading post about what he wrote then. It was quite a while ago for sure.
