

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : Micro nymphing

Re: Micro nymphing

Author: : wgmiller

Date: : 2012/2/25 11:01:12

URL:

Quote:

Coughlin wrote:

Wow, not only did it look like the fish was snagged, but the slack in the line almost guaranteed that when he saw the fish turn and struck the odds were better than even it would have to be a snag. In that situation (frankly, fish in a tub) he has to high stick the line off the water and keep the indicator above the fly.

Coughlin

Amen. That was a perfect scenario for a little "high sticking" if I've ever seen it. The amount of drag he had from the fly line certainly had to create an unnatural presentation. Not to mention, reacting to a strike certainly wouldn't have been a timely situation.

I think we've all accidentally "foul hooked" a fish (by spooking a pool, etc.) and that video certainly shows a fish that was not hooked in the mouth.