Just got the april/may issue the other day.

And made it a point to check the captions on every fishing picture.

Nothing from the Becks in this issue.

It had a really nice article on midges - with some fantastic shots of trout in the process of eating them from the surface.

And in the editorial near the front, it is pointed out how these pictures were all taken on public water.

I'm wondering if the've gotten lots of negative feedback about the Becks, and are doing something about it?
