

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : Should we trust the DEP?

Re: Should we trust the DEP?

Author: : Gudgeonville

Date: : 2012/3/7 5:31:08

URL:

The field level inspectors at the DEP can and should be trusted. They are the ones out there overseeing the day to day operations. It would be interesting to see just why the "violation" was issued. There are a lot of reasons a company may have a violation. The majority are non pollution, notification type of issues. Casing failure (an unfortunate catchall phrase being used to tabulate data) does not necessarily mean any type of leak.