csoult---different in the species..and seasons..early season hatches will have gone through a few before winter, while later in the season flies will still be in egg stage or one instar till spring and summer when they will grow..reason to carry flies in different sizes through the season. minnows are the same, right now all adults, then in late spring/summer you see alot more smaller ones then in fall they are large again...and ya all wonder why I carry so many boxes...lol
