

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Help Identify

Re: Help Identify

Author: : ryguyfi

Date: : 2012/3/11 9:28:00

URL:

Quote:

SBecker wrote:

Well I guess your right. Thanks SF. Used to seeing the more greenish bodies to the baetis's.

Many maflies will darken up when they hit the spinner stage. A lot will turn a rust brown after they molt to the spinners. Hence "rusty" spinner. They also have a clear wing as Sandfly said, compared to a "dun" which has a blue/gray wing.

My first guess was BWO spinner, but I'm in no means in the same league as Sandfly in Entomology.