Ry,

Probably more dumb luck (with more emphasis on "dumb" than "luck"). 😊

Certainly a fattie. I don't worry much with weight and don't usually have a scale. This guy (probably an old female in reality) was indeed very thick and heavy. I'd guess he's in the upper four lb range - maybe a tick over five. Whatever the case, river bass are often very heavy in the late fall, pre-spawn months. They seem to slim a bit by late summer but this is a very broad observation.
